Take brother, all thy little store
Of earthly goods, nor ask for more—
Belze, brother, on the little spell,
I've treasured here by years of tell,—
But stay the breath that oft would stein, That lowel of a better name ; Brek not to work my living death, By elander's foul, postiferous breath,

Leave me a shed that's rude and old,
To shield me from the Winter's cold;
A heap of strap to be my bed,
On which to lay my aching head,
The morsel which our natures crave, To keep the body from the grave,-But stay that slanderous poleoned breath,

I'll give all creators comforts o'er, E'en beg my bread from door to door, Or toll for it, while others eleop, In lowest depths of cavera deep, With neither sun nor star to light The glosm of one perpetual night, To escape the assessin's dreadful aim, Who spares the life but kills the name !

Booner I would that life should end
By treach'rous hand of aseming friend,
Who should my careless steps beguile,
With Josb's bland, but treacherous smile,
While neath bis mantle gleam'd the steel,
Whose edge my bleeding heart should feel, Than have my reputation die, From evil tongue and evil eye !

Dissolution of the Union,

The ball is rolling ; agitation is increasing ; and from one section of Upper Canada to the other, east and west, public journalists are discussing the question of a dissolution of the Union. In the Globe of Tuesday last, we find another strong article in favor of repeal, in answer to the Kingston News. We agree | tion in your paper, some time since, to teachwith the latter journal, as to the objects of the ors and others, to occupy a certain portion Upion; but we ask-has it accomplished the purposes contemplated 1 Has it lessened the sectional differences between the two Provinces ? And if, for a time, the union realized Mr. Alexander, of the Common Behool, the anticipations of its advocates, can that be would embreco the opportunity first. As considered a reason why it should be continued after it becomes manifestly unjust, and de- that in future they will be continued by these trimental to the interests of either of the contracting parties? The Provinces bare been united quite long enough for the good of Western Canada, and the sooner they dissolve an influential journal like the Globe taking up the question. The leaven is at work in the country constituencies; and, no doubt, ere we one of the political question of the day.

During the past four years, Upper Canada has been completely at the mercy of French from this section of the Province, being in a constant minority on every matter of vital im-Thus R. Blake 1,60, means that R. Blake portance. When the Frenchmen said yea, it was yea; and if they said nay, it was nay, on almost every measure before Parliament;hence the manner in which the offairs of the Province are being managed is becoming altogether too irksome to be borne. The complicated machinery of our Government, the expenses of legislation, and the speculation and jobbery of men elected to fill stations of trust and honor, are exils of immense magnitude; and these exils have been multiplied as a sequence of the Union. But the end is not .-So long as that connection is continued the exils complained of are likely to increase instead of diminish. By the events of last July, when the Frenchmen voted non-confidence is the Brown-Dorion Administration, Upper Canada was given clearly to understand that no egt of men, who would not submit blindly to Lower Canadian dictation, would be allowed to hold the reigns of power; hence self-protection points to the only alternative-separatwo Provinces will be dissolved, and when the hoarde of blood-suckers from the east will have to be sustained from their own resources.

As we remarked above, the Kingston News seems to think that because the Union was consummated by the free-will of the representatives of both sections of the Province, it should still be continued, no matter what the consequences. The editor says :

" It is too late in the day to recall all the sup posed disabilities of which the Union may have been the parent. It was consummated by the free-will of the representatives of both sections at the recommendation of the Imperial Government, who saw no other way of reconciling the jealousies before existing between the East and West. That Union did reconcile them; it did CRICKET-The Union Cricket Club, com- settle amicably, and satisfactorily the various posed chiefly of young men of this Village, subjects of difference which threatened at one time to drive excitable politicians to the verge of civil war."

In answer to the foreging extract, the Globe has the following very sensible and well-timed remarks :

"Too late in the day to rectify a gross blunder? Too late ' to checkmate sectional greed and intolence? 'Too late ' to secure to Upper Canada her rights, and to provent a continuance of the wrongs she has suffered since the at Pavis. consummation of the Union ? Not so, gentlemen.
